A START TOWARD UNION.

IMPORTANT LETTER FROM SAMUEL COMPERS.

HE ASKS THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION TO JOIN THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

At the meeting of the Central Labor Union in Clarendon Hall yesterday an important letter was received from the American Federation of Labor, signed by President Samuel Gompers. It asked that the Central Labor Union join that National labor organization. Mr. Hoadley said the letter was one of the greatest documents in the interests of organized labor he had ever read. Although he is a Knight of Labor, he said he wished President Sovereign, of that organization, had the same stuff in him as Gompers has. President Gompers's communication was referred to the affiliated unions of the Central Labor Union for them to act upon. It was rumored that this is the beginning of a general movement which has as its object the amalgamation of the two National bodies, the American Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor. It is also said by members of the organization that if this could be accomplished it would be the deathblow of the Socialist Labor Alliance, which is only an adjunct to the Socialist Labor Party. The leaders of this latter organization have declared themselves repeatedly against the principles of trade unionism, and it is declared they are seeking political preference at the expense of the workingmen of America.

William J. O'Brien presided at the meeting yesterday. Mr. Hoadley presented the report of the Central Labor Committee appointed to aid the Improved Housing Council in its work. Mr. Hoadley spoke in favor of the project of the capitalists represented by Professor E. R. L. Gould, of the Johns Hopkins University, and said that the committee upon investigation thought the scheme of providing better homes at a reasonable rental to workingmen and their families a good one and worthy of every encouragement.

Mr. McDermitt, one of the patriarchs of the Central Labor Union, advised the body to go slowly in the matter. The report of the commit-

Central Labor Union, advised the body to go slowly in the matter. The report of the committee was accepted.

A letter was received from District Assembly No. 75, Knights of Labor, of Brooklyn, requesting the Central Labor Union to use its influence to have workingmen patronize the Nassau Street Railway lines in Brooklyn and not the lines of the Brooklyn Heights Company. The District Assembly alleged that the latter company was making its motormen and conductors work fourteen hours a day, and that some men had worked that length of time for 56 cents. The company also made its men purchase their own uniforms, paying $28 for them in winter and $15 in summer. When off duty they were compelled to wear citizens' clothes. The letter also alleged that after the settlement of the big street railway strike in Brooklyn, in 1894-95, President Rossiter, of the Brooklyn Heights Company, promised that the company would not discriminate against the strikers, but that he was now doing so and imposing on all the old men wherever he could do so and gradually driving them from the company's employ. The men did not want to strike if they could help it, but if things did not charge for the better they might be forced to do so. The Central Labor Union voted to do what it could to help the members of District Assembly No. 75 in the matter.

THE CLUBS AND EXCISE.

NO CHANGE IN THE SITUATION AS RE-GARDS SUNDAY LIQUOR-SELLING.

There was no change in the Sunday situation : the leading social clubs yesterday as regards the liquor question. The opinion of Corporation Counsel Scott did not affect the matter one way or the other, as has already been stated in The Tribune would presumably be the case, according to views expressed by leading members of several clubs.

The declaration yesterday by George Hillard, the Special Deputy Commissioner of Excise, that he would probably attempt to collect taxes alleged to be due from clubs under the tax certificate clause of the Raines law, made no impression at The view was taken that nothing of the kind would be done, until a final adjudication of the matter was had. Commissioner Lyman's opinion, as telegraphed from Albany, that he would ignore Scott's formal views was taken as leading possibly to a clash between city and State authori-

The clubs at least deprecate any further agitation of the question. A prominent member of the Republican Club, who is a lawyer, said yesterday: The less public talk over the whole subject the better. It looks as if there would have to be a test case made, since the Adelphi Ciub decision was rendered under the old law. The best thing for was rendered under the old law. The best thing for Commissioner Lyman to do would be to make a test case with one of the leading clubs. We have no doubt but that the clubs would be exempted from the operation of the Raines law."

The Republican Club kept its bar closed yesterday, as it has since the Raines law was passed. The restaurant was not closed. The Union League Club, which kept its bar shut for one Sunday, had returned the following week to its old custom. The bar was open yesterday. The Union Club has not curtailed the privileges of its members. At the Manhattan there has been no change introduced. At the University, Lotos, New-York Yacht and other well-known organizations the usual conditions prevailed. At the Liederkranz and Arion clubhouses members had the same privileges as they have had all along. Care was taken, as usual, to exclude guests from the clubhouses.

WATCHING "FAKE" CLUBS. ENFORCEMENT OF THE RAINES LAW YESTERDAY

-SALOON-HOTELS CONTINUE TO THRIVE. Beyond the fact that the police paid especial attention to the discovery of "fake" clubs, there was nothing new in the condition of affairs in conection with the enforcement of the Raines liquor law yesterday. The new "hotels" into which many saloons have been converted did a flourishing trade-even larger in many instances than on the previous Sunday, and the regular hotels and legitimate clubs served drinks as usual. But there was trouble for some alleged clubs, which have had a mushroom growth within the last week or two, and among those that were interfered with by the police was the that were interfered with by the police was the so-called "Tiger Club," which held a brief but lively session over a saloon at Twenty-seventh-st. and Beventh-ave, yesterday morning. Policeman Dulfer, of the Thirtieth-st. station, had serious doubts as to this club and determined to investigate. His entrance was disputed at the street door by Michael Sullivan, whom he placed under arrest. Then the officer went upstairs and found twenty or thirty men drinking at a bar, behind which was George Lavery, of No. 306 West Thirty-third-st. Dulfer arrested Lavery despite the protestations of the other men that the place was the quarters of the "Tiger Club." The license of the saloon below the alleged clubrooms is in the mame of James Haggerty.

A man much under the influence of liquor walked into the Elizabeth-st, station-house late Saturday night, and surprised the sleepy sergeant at th desk by announcing that he was a violator of the Raines law, and had come to give himself up. "How have you violated the Raines law?" stern!

anded the sergeant, who is used to dealing with

Andrew McGarry owns a saloon at No. 42 Beachst. To enable him to do business on Sunday, he procured a hotel license, fitted up the required number of bedrooms, and was open yesterday for Detectives Gargan and McKeever, of the Leonardst. station, were also open for business, and they went into McGarry's place and ordered beer. When went into McGarry's place and ordered beer. When McGarry informed them that they must order a meal, McKeever, who was not very hungry, ordered a sandwich. This was brought to him, along with a glass of beer for each.

Gargan had not had his dinner, and even if he had he would have been willing to pay for another one, to catch a lawbreaker, so he ordered a porterhouse steak, asparagus, and a piece of strawberry shortcake.

This astounded McGarry, and made McKeever laugh, and the would-be hotel-keeper was taken to the station and locked up.

He said that he intended to put in a kitchen, but as yet had no facilities for furnishing a 'meal' in the hotel sense of the term.

STATEN ISLAND HAPPENINGS.

A lecture for women, on bleyeling, will be given this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Woman's Club, Tompkins-ave., St. George, under the auspices of the Staten Island Bicycle Club. The well-known lecturer on physical culture, Miss E. Marguerite Lindley, will show the beneficial and unfavorable influences on figure and health, and explain the ethics of dress and saddles. The lecture will be illustrated with life-size posture drawings. A halfhour will be devoted to demonstrations of Swedish movements for home practice to supplement wheeling. A memorandum of these will be given to each member of the audience. Miss Lindley's unique member of the audience. Ansatzalary's linique plan of adding supplementary exercise to develop the muscles not vigorously exercised in bicycling is a feature of great interest to all, and the many able arguments she brings out have gained for her a de-cided popularity.

The Staten Island authorities last night received a telegram from Mrs. K. Rateliffe, of McCand-st., Toronto, Canada, stating that the body of the man who killed himself near Mariner's Harbor was probably that of her son. She is expected to come on to identify it.

A meeting of the Common Council will be held this evening in Manor Hall. It is expected that the Mayor will send in some nonlinations. The terms of office of Henry R. Hicks, as Police Commisstoner, and Robert P. Getty, City Treasurer, expired on May 1, and it is believed that the Mayor will send in names at the meeting this evening It is said that Mayor Pene will renominate Mr. Hicks. The subject of the new building to contain a police station, city court and stables for the police, will come up for consideration. The Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, of the Common Council, and the Police Commissioners had several meetings last week, planning for a statement to be assed to the competing architects, giving an idea of the kind of building that is wanted, and what it is to contain. Proposals for the construction of a public bathhouse at the northwest corner of Jefferson and Vark sis, will be received this evening. At the last regular meeting Alderman Nugent introduced a resolution that the Council vote for official city newspapers, and, under the rule, the question will come up for action this evening. It is said that Mayor Pene will reneminate Mr.

on the elevated to Grand-st, went the car. But there was trouble ahead. Grand-st. is the first transfer station, and there was a big crowd to take advantage of it. The Grand-st. cars connect the cable line with one of the most crowded ten-ement districts of the East Side. For a nickel one of these people who have been shut up in the hot tenements or sweatshops for six long, weary days can reach Central Park, or even Fort George, at the north end of Manhattan Island. And so there was a crowd at Grand-st. A crowd of people, and each one of them with his transfer in his hand, wildly gesticulating to the conductor of the car so that he might be sure to stop. And about half of the crowd carried babies or held small children by the

and it was noticed that an old woman leading a youth by the hand was tearing violently after the car and yelling at the top of her lungs in some language unknown to the reporter. The child, who was bareheaded, had his mouth wide open and was crying with all his might. By the time the woman and her charge had run a block, the car still proceeding calmiy on its way, somebody understood His search was rewarded after another block, and, picking up a small boy's felt hat, he threw it out. The old woman stopped, the child ceased crying and the car went on. The hat had been carried onto the car in the scrimmage at Grand-st., and the old woman and the owner of the hat had been left behind to do a hundred-yard dash up the avenue after the lost property. After a moment or two of comment and some one of the loungers on the street, seeing the grip and the rapidly receding car, ran into the street, caught up the article and started in lumbering pursuit. Another chase! This was too much. The father, hope reburning, put his boy down 'and jumped from the car. He was a pretty good sprinter and met the man half way. Selzing the grip, as the iron arm of a mail car seizes the pouch that is waiting for it, he turned again and started on his race for the car. It was a blistering afternoon, and the perspiration was rolling down the unfortunate man's face, but he kept bravely on, and after a sprint of a block and a half he was able to drop once more into the bosom of his family.

This was enough excitement for a while, and the occupants of the car were left to their various pursuits until just before Forty-third-st, was reached. At this point a young man, who was evidently taking his girl out for a Bunday afternoon's pleasure, arose with dignity and endeavored to catch the conductor's attention. All in vain! The young man on West Forty-eighth-st, on "The Building of the Nation." He said in part:

It seems that God is developing a new nation on this continent, to be mighty in human progress, intelligence, power and influence in shaping the destiny of the world. There were four essential things in the proper building of the nation—colonization, nationalization, Americanization and Christianization. The manifest operation of Providence was seen in the character of the colonists that built this Nation. The sturdy type of our colonists come to us from England and Holland. We must be one to be a great nation, and all must be Americanized. If you go over to the East Side you will find a small Judea: a little further and there is Chinatown. Then you find little Germany and a section of Ireland. If these people are to remain Jews, Chinese, Germans and Irish we cannot be one nation. And the principal factor in making us one is language. So long as these streams of foregners come pouring in and retain their language so long is our Nation imperilled. We are teaching people in this generation that there must be separate church and state. There are obtacles to spreading that principle, but they will be overcome.

come.

Another important thing is the universal education of children in our public schools. We have the right to shut the gates at Ellis Island and keep out the foreign crowds unless they consent to assimilate with us. Our Nation is founded on Christianity and must progress on lines of morality on the Third-ave, cable-cars is a good cable-car at Printing House Square about 3:30 to be about the coolest place obtainable. All went well for a time. There was plenty of room and all the fresh air in Park Row (a limited quantity at times), with the company of a good cigar and pleas-

When the car stopped there was a rush, so flere and wild and excited that one could gain some small idea of what the interior of a crowded theatre must be like when the alarm of fire is raised, Elbowing, pushing, crowding, talking in about fifteen different languages, and most of them anything but English, these people started for the car. The little ones were the worst sufferers. One little chap, whose head, when he was standing on the step, reached just to the handle of the seat, had his face jammed up against the brass by a young woman in holiday attire who was one of the most active in the crowd. The little fellow did not relish the treatment in the least, and gave vent to his indignation and suffering in long-drawn howls, father finally came to the rescue, and looked indignantly around to find out who had been injuring his son and heir. But he had been too busy himself to notice and satisfied himself by swearing softly in Hungarian, a course which his wife evidently ap-

By this time the car was once more on its way, laughter the troubles of those who had been left behind were forgotten. The father of the child whose face had been used so roughly at Grand-st., among his other troubles had a grip, presumably containing a little luncheon or some other picnic ably among his human bundles the grip was for a moment forgotten, and in the general melée, as the car struck the slight curve near Fifth-st., it was knocked to the ground. The car kept right on. The father was afraid to leave his children. There was a general howl and uproar. The conductor was cursed and maligned, but all to no purpose. The grip remained on the ground and the father in the One of the loungers on the street, seeing the grip grew red in the face, but the car went on. At Fortyfourth-st, the car stopped, after the young man had called the conductor all the names he could think of, and as a parting salute he told the conductor that it was "a wonder he wouldn't let a man off after he had been told a dozen times." Then the conductor waxed wroth and called the young man an idiot and a fool and a few more things to think that a conductor could remember where every one wanted to leave the car when their destinations had been told him three miles further down the road. The young man and his girl trudged back to Forty-third-st., he turning around every moment

or two to hurl some parting shot at the conductor.
Then there was a semblance of peace once more.

At One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth-st, and Thirdave, there were about two hundred people waiting for the One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth-st, and Amsterdam-ave, car to Fort George. At Second-ave, there were about one hundred more, who would have the first chance at the car. By the time the car reached Third-ave, it was more than comfortably filled, and then came a scramble, by the side of which the one at Grand-st, was small. The one uptown, however, was not so disastrous, as there were only two entrances to the car, at the front and rear.
The conductor endeavored to pacify the crowd and to prevent the shoving, but it was no use. On they came, until the place was packed as tightly as a box of sardines, when those outside, out of sheer wearlness, desisted. Then the conductor started the car, and the crowd outside began to swell and to prepare themselves for the next scramble. The ride up
One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth-st, and Amsterdamave, was stiffing, the people being so close together, until the car had reached a point far enough out LEFT THE AZORES ON JANUARY 2. Shipping men believe that the British ship Mi St. Michaels, Azores, on January 21, and has not dijk, Captain H. de Boer, which left & Mchae's about the same time as the Middlesex, ha wirel about the same time as the Aminteest, here, loaded and re-embarked. and to keep guards at the doors. Yesterday an officer was placed in the hallway, while Policemen Flood and Crom made their way to the Sunday They succeeded in passing the guard, and once in induced the bartender to take a drink with them; but when they attempted to place the latter under arrest the trouble began. The bartender, with the help of four men, assaulted the policemen, using help of four men, assaulted the policemen, using chairs and anything else they could lay hands on. Everything in the place was overturned. The policemen found it necessary to display their revolvers, Meanwhile the policeman on post in the hallway hearing the struggle, whistied for assistance and another officer rushed to the place. Together they ran upstairs, and after a hard fight the men in the saloon were captured. The patrol-wagon which had been summoned soon arrived and the offenders were taken to the station. Their names are John Sullivan, the bartender; Michael Morrison, of No. 316 East Twenty-fourth-st.; Daniel Sullivan, of No. 391 Avenue A, and Thomas Lambert, of No. 442 East Twenty-third-st.
